

Moshe Hecht

CEO Hatch Giving, inc.

A philanthropic futurist and innovator, at the helm of Charidy.com Moshe built a global team and platform that helped 7,000+ organizations raise over 3 billion dollars in 8 years.

Dedicated to advancing philanthropy through the use of technology, he won the Nonprofit Technology Professional of the Year award (Nonprofit Pro) and his articles on the future of giving have been published in Forbes, Guidestar, Nonprofit Pro, Nonprofit Quarterly, and eJewishPhilanthropy. Moshe also makes angel investments in technology that services the nonprofit and corporate giving markets.

Through the covid pandemic, Moshe has been working with some of the world's most prominent nonprofits such as the American Cancer Society and others, on revolutionizing their digital donation infrastructures.

Moshe is the founder and CEO of HATCH.AI: the first-of-its-kind Giving Intelligence Platform.

Moshe is also an aspiring triathlete and marathoner and is often racing and raising funds from his friends and colleagues for his favorite charities.
